BIO

Further to his various experiences overseas and some time working with John Pawson, Paul McAnearly founded his own practice in 2006. The award-winning London-based practice is engaged in designing a range of residential, retail and cultural projects. Known for a spirit of elegantly refined minimalism, the practice has a track record for devising innovative and environmentally sustainable architecture and interiors in response to often challenging sites and budgets.

In particular, the idea of substance is crucial to the work of PMA. In its most obvious manifestation, substance speaks of physical materiality and the tactile quality of architecture – what things are made of and how they are put together.

Inspired by a spirit of enquiry and economy, the practice cultivates an exploratory approach to detailing and fabrication, based on its own unique culture of research and experimentation. Over the years, it has established close working relationships with skilled craftsmen such as stonemasons, joiners and glaziers to achieve the best quality of workmanship.

McAnearly has won multiple awards for his work, most recently the Bathroom Design of the Year (Over £15k) category at the Designer Kitchen & Bathroom Awards 2017.
